THE THIRD WORLD PEOPLE – TEOTIHUACAN: (the place where man becomes god), has existed as a sacred center since the time of the Third World. This is also known as the time of the Third Sun. The topography of the earth was different than it is today, and the third world humanity, their technology and science was more highly advanced than ours. The memory of these "giants" melded into legend and sacred histories as the Elohim and the time of the golden age when the "gods walked among us". Interestingly, we are descendants of this humanity, with the capacity to awaken to our inheritance of this sacred knowledge and advanced consciousness in this present age. Prophecies indicate that all shall be revealed. As the Hopi elders say, "We are the ones we have been waiting for."

Teotihuacan, Tiahuanacu in Bolivia and the pyramids of Giza in Egypt are all third world monuments left by our ancestors as material verification that they were indeed here. As to what purpose the structures originally served, we do not yet know for sure. There are many theories - astronomical markers, spiritual initiation/energy power centers, landing stations for ancient astronauts, and/or refineries for precious metals, as suggested by Zecharia Sitchin in his EARTH CHRONICLE Series. As more and more ancient monuments are unearthed and records of sacred knowledge are rediscovered, perhaps we will soon know.

PYRAMIDS OF MICA - In the early 1900's, an archeologist doing excavation work on the Pyramid of the Sun, (the third largest pyramid on the planet), discovered that the fifth layer of the structure was covered with a thick sheet of Mica! Leopoldo Bartres, the man in charge of the project at Teotihuacan, immediately had the material hauled off to sell for profit. Bartres never bothered to question the significance or purpose of the unique find! Even more amazing is the fact that this particular type of Mica is said to come from a Brazilian mine in South America, more than 2000 miles away! Two more thick slabs of Mica (approx. 92 sq. ft) were later found one on top of the other, in a subterranean temple situated along the Avenue of the Dead, about 400 meters from the Pyramid of the Sun. You can still see some of the mica floor in a tucked away subterranean room off the Avenida de los Muertos. Mica is used as an insulator in electronic and atomic apparatus. It is a highly efficient energy conductor. It is clear that the unique properties of this Mica served an important function other than ornamentation in the building of Teotihuacan, for such vast quantities to be transported over such a far distance.

THE TOLTECS: TEOTIHUACAN was home to the Toltecs thousands of years ago. The Toltecs were not a race of people, but men and women of knowledge, a society of artists, priests and scientists who came together at Teotihuacan to preserve the spiritual knowledge and practices of the ancient ones. Teotihuacan served as a spiritual university, where Toltec master teachers (naguals) and their students studied and lived the three masteries: The Mastery of Awareness, the Mastery of Intent and the Mastery of Transformation. They underwent practices and initiations to "know themselves", transcending fears and limiting perceptions to attain personal freedom and happiness - living heaven on earth. Teotihuacan still remains a living repository of this "silent knowledge."
